THEFT STE OF STREET

The Bank-Note. The following amusing scene which vecurred recently in an America's family will be found not uninteresting to our readers. The chief role is played by Money, the prime mover in such affairs. An eye-witness related to us the occurrence in the following words: One evening that I took tea with an intimate friend of mine, while we were scated at the table Mr. Baker, my friend's busband, while absently feeling in his vest pocket, found a five dollar note which he had no recollection of putting there.

"Halloo!" be exclaimed; "that is no place for you. I should have put you in my pocket-book. Here, wife, don't you want some ready money?" and he threw the note across the table to her.

"Many thanks," she replied; "money is always acceptable, although I have no present need of it." See folded the note and put it under the edge of the tea-tray, and then proceeded to pour out the tea and attend to her guests.

At her right sat Mrs. Faston, or Aunt Susan, whom we all knew as an old acquaintance, who from time to time spent a week with Mrs. Baker. Her visit was just at an end, and she was about to return home that evening. As Mrs. Baker was pouring out her tea it occurred to her that she was somewhat in her aunt's debt for certain small matters, and when she had the opportunity she pushed the note under her plate, saying: " Here, aunty, take this five dollars in part payment of my debt." Very well," she replied, "but the money does not belong to me. I owe you fifteen dollars, my dear Grace, which you lent me last Saturday. I had to pay the taxes on my little house and had not the ready money at hand, and Grace lent it me," exclaimed Aunt

Grace, an orphan, was a cousin to Mrs. Baker. She and her brother Frank boarded with ber, and made a very pleasant addition to the family circle. She was studying music, and her brother was clerk in a mercantile she handed it to Grace, saying, "I will give casually dropped in answer to their inquiryou this now on account, and the rest as soon as I get it."

"All right," answered Grace, laughing, and since we all seem to be in the humor to pay our debts, I will follow suit. Frank, I owe you something for music you have bought for me, here is part of it"; and she threw the bank-note across the table to her brother, who sat opposite. We were all highly amused to see how the note wandered around the table. "That is a wonderful note," said Mr. Baker. "I only wish somebody owed me something, and I owed somebody something, so that I could come into the ring." "You can," said Frank. "I owe Mrs.

Baker or you, it's all the same, for my board. I herewith pay you part of it." Amid general laughter Mr. Baker took the note, and playfully threw it again to his wife, saying, "It's yours again, Lucy, be-cause what belongs to me belongs to you. It has completed the round, and we have all had the benefit of it."

"And now it must go around again," replied she, gayly. "I like to see money circulate; it should never lie idle. Aunt Susan you take it; now I have paid you ten dol "Dear Grace, here is another five dollars on my account," said Aunt Susan, handing Grace, handing it to her brother.

"And I pay you ten dollars for my board," continued he, and the note once more rested in Mr. Baker's hands. The exchanges were as quick as thought, and we were all convulsed with laughter. "Was there ever so wonderful an exchange!" exclaimed Grace. " It is all nonsense," cried Mr. Baker.

"It's all quite right," money belonged to you you could dispose of common."

"It shows the use of money," said Aunt Susan. "It makes the circuit of the world, and brings its value to every one who touches it."

"And this note has not finished its work yet, as I will show you, my dear husband, if you will give it to me again," said Mrs. Ba-

"I present you with this five dollar note," said Mr. Baker, bowing deeply. "And I give it to you, Aunt Susan. I owed you afteen dollars, and I have paid my debt." You have, my dear friend, without doubt; and now, dear Grace, I pay you my indebtedness, with many thanks for your asdistance." "I take it with thanks, Aunt Susan," replied.Grace; "and now the time has come when this wonder-working, this inexhaustibly rich bank-note must be divided, because I don't owe Frank five dollars more. How much have I to pay yet?" "Two dollars and sixty-two cents," replied Frank. "Can you change #2" "Let me see; two bairty-eight; yes, there is the change; the spell is broken, Grace, and you and I divide the spoils." This benk-note bests all I ever saw How much has it pain! Let us count up,'

"Mrs. Baker gave Aun Susan fifteen dollars, which Asint Summ gave to me; I gave Frank twelve dollars and sixty-two cents; Frank gave Mr. Baker ten dollars-all together fifty-two dollars and sixty-two cents."
"It's all nonsense, I tell you," cried Mr. Baker again; you all owe each other what you owed before."

"Tou are deceived, my dear, by the rapid, unbroken race this little same has made; to me it is as clear as daylight," replied Mrs.

"If it is all nonsense, how could the note which you gave Mrs. Baker, it nothing to me or to you, be divided between us two?" asked Grace

Mr. Baker didn't-seem to sec it very clearly, but the others did, and they often relate this little history for the amusement of their

Gentlemen of the Representative Senate

The revolving click of the pendulum has brought us to the beginning of another battle f Congress. Our majestic country still preads from ocean to ocean and has lost brought us to the beginning of another battle of Congress. Our majestic country still spreads from ocean to ocean and has lost none of its agricultural intensity, except a few hundred feet of valuable sand-lanks precipitated in the yawning maw of the sea of Long Branch, but which I am informed by the bureau of emigration is amply compensated by mud-imps dealt out at the Mississippi, Our rivers still steal triumphantly along within their banks, and I recommend the levy of a tax for levees to prevent the liquidation of the State debt of Louisiana a second time. For all of which let us be thankful. Crops have been abundant where they were abundantly raised, and the grasshopper spared a small portion of our national domain in which the mill-hopper now revolves. We are at peace with foreign countries, and our "relations" with England are very well indeed, as I am advised by my son-in-law to-day. France seems to be getting along as usual, and no revolution has occurred there in the last week. Our friend William Koenig, of Germany, is re-ported having lost his mind from the cares of State, which affects me with a feeling of uneasiness. The Czar of Russia reports having found the diamonds purloined from his wife, and we may consequently look for a prolonged peace between the two countries. I enclose a report from the distinguished divine sent around the world to inspect consulships, in which you will observe that the usual annual mission-ary feast took place in the Fiji Islands. King will observe that the usual annual missionary feast took place in the Fiji Islands. King Kaloka, of the Sandwich Islands, is on our shores, and unless worn out on the journey will soon reach our capital. In the far West the peaceful depopulation of the Indian progresses satisfactorily. I am happy to state

The late elections throughout the country are a pleasing evidence to me that the policy I have so firmly adhered to, particularly in Louislana, of permitting the people of the southern States to elect and seat their own officers is fully apprecisted. I am pained to announce that the eminent jurist Judge Durell has tendered his resignation. His uniformly correct rulings and faithful adherence to the strict letter of the law should be fitly recognized by Congress in some substantial man-ner. Booker's Wooing-Getting a Wife in Towa.

Booker, of Plymouth county, Iowa, was a widower of forty, and is a plodding, independent farmer. Booker is a man of business. He used to live in Sioux City; while there he fell into an excavation, and recovered $400 damages for slight injuries received, when he removed to Plymouth county, where there were fewer dead-falls. But his wife died and left him in a bad fix. He must have a housekeeper, and he had no time to fool away. He wanted a cheap article, too; so he resolved to marry one and have her for good or bad, as she might turn

He went to Sioux City, and called on an old friend, to whom he stated his desperate case. His friend told him where there was a large room full of sewing-girls, and that he might take his pick of the lot. The idea pleased Booker. One or two signified their willingness to do housework, and asked: "What wages?" Booker then explained that he was looking for a wife. That altered the case, and the girls reddened and warmed up to their work. Booker picked up the reddest one, and asked her if she would give him a moment's conversation in private. She blushingly consented, and the two retired into a little back room. Only a few minutes elapsed when the couple came out with a confused sort of air, for they knew that the whole shop was looking at them. The young girl started off in a flurry and hurry. Booker said she had consented to become his wife, provided she could get the consent of her parents, and she had gone after it. He had also referred her to several Total, 64 bushels. of the leading business men of the city respecting his points of character and ability to entertain a wife and rear a family. Booker
